Clowns on stilts at the Nationals Opener.

Hurler Geo. W. Bush Starts Nats Season

The first pitch of the season at the new Nationals Ballpark was delivered by President George W. Bush.

Tied in the 9th inning the Mar. 30 evening game against the Atlanta Braves was climaxed by the bottom-of-the-ninth home run by the team's "Franchise Player," Ryan Zimmerman.

Two boys, in shirts, ties and jackets for Easter, show off the baskets of eggs collected in an Easter Egg Hunt.

Waterside Mall is a Hole in the Ground – Again

After demolition of the old Waterside Mall, excavation has started for constructing the foundations and underground parking for the new office buildings of WATERFRONT, as it is being called. Many residents of Near Southwest will remember 40 plus years ago when construction first started.

Developers Forest City Washington have given us the following answers to questions about how things are going:

"Thanks for the inquiry. Here are answers to your questions:

1. Are they driving piles for the foundation? Yes.

2. Will that noise continue long? We anticipate the pile driving activity will be completed in May.

3. Is this the beginning of the parking garage? Yes it is.

4. Does one building go up before the second or both together? Both buildings, which will be located on either side of 4th St. SW, are being constructed concurrently. However, one building will deliver about a month later than the other in late 2009/early 2010.

5. What's the timing of 4th St? The opening of 4th St. SW will coincide with the delivery of the two office buildings.

6. Of demolition of the park on I

St. SW? The park demolition is a part of the 4th St. project. Waterfront Associates will demolish the park on behalf of the District according to their schedule.

7. Will there be briefings of the ANC? At this point, there are no scheduled update briefings with ANC 6-D.

8. Do you have a webcam? Yes, here is a link to it— <http://oxblue.com/pro/open/?webPath=clark/waterfront>

9. Does a website tell any of this? A more comprehensive website for this project is currently under construction and expected to be live by this summer. The project's existing website is www.waterfrontdc.com.

(Here is how the construction site looked on the web-cam in mid-April, 2008. – Copyrighted 2008 by OxBlue, Inc., used by permission).

And how it will look a few years from now.

Neo Morake, Student Pres. at Grinnell

Southwest student Neo Morake has been elected by the student body of Grinnell College, a private, liberal arts college in Iowa, as the 2008-09 student government president. She is a Political Science major about to enter her senior year. She has been a student staff member in a dormitory, a dining hall worker, softball manager and Grinnell Posse intern.

Neo graduated from Amidon Elementary, Jefferson Junior High, and the Baneker Academic High School. She is an active member of SW's Saint Matthews Lutheran Church. She is the daughter of Shirley Morake Murphy and Tony Murphy who now reside in Houston Texas.

(Posse is a nationwide program that selects and trains 10-member teams of inner city high school students who then support each other as a "Posse" as they attend Grinnell or one of a half dozen other liberal arts college on four year scholarships).

Former SW Activist at Freedom House

By Thelma Jones

Lavern Jackson Chatman, former SW resident and SWNA Board member, invites the community to visit the newly-open Freedom House Museum at 1315 Duke Street in Alexandria, VA. The Duke Street building was once the largest domestic slave-trading operation in America. Freedom House is now the headquarters of the Northern Virginia Urban League (NOVAUL), which organization is now headed by Jackson, as CEO and President since 2004.

A tour of the museum will enable visitors to learn about the challenges of past human suffering, contributions of slaves to the American society and the ongoing struggle being waged by the Urban League's outreach efforts. Visitors will also see artifacts from the past such as an actual cotton boll which reminds us when cotton was "king," hear slave narrative readings, see text etched on the wall about the sale of individual slaves, and watch a motion-activated film with costumed students from a local university enacting slave life in Alexandria.

The museum is free and open to the public. For hours of operation, please call (703) 836-2858, email tours@freedom-housemuseum.org or visit www.freedom-housemuseum.org.

"Mary Early: New Sculpture, Gallery 101, Georgetown University, 2008"

Mary Early, SW Artist

By Thelma Jones

Even as the last buildings of old Southwest Waterside Mall come tumbling down, we can still boast about some of Washington's best-kept secrets. Mary Early, 32, a sculptor on the rise, is one of our community secrets. A 1997 graduate of Bennington College with a BA in Visual Arts, Early creates large-scale complex sculptures and installations. She works in various media, such as wood, wax and beeswax and also creates drawings, including pencil and ink on paper. She began exhibiting and selling her works around 1998 and admits: "I don't make much money on selling sculpture!" Instead her income comes from grants and honorarium.

Early's recent work has concentrated on a select few forms in which she repeats carefully chosen shapes to create larger objects. She states: "This has taken on variations, from a hoop shape that almost resembles a skirt to a dense circular ring that rests on the floor to an arch that begins at floor level and rises up to barely meet the wall." Her sculptures can incorporate a few dozen to over a thousand components, each component made up of its own multiple parts. Simply magnificent!

Early's influences include sculptors such as Martin Puryear, Rachel Whiteread, and Wolfgang Laib, whose sculptures can be seen at the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden and the National Gallery of Art.

In 2007, Early was a finalist for the Bethesda Trawick Prize and received an Artist Fellowship from the DC Commission on the Arts and Humanities. She is a member of the board of Washington Sculptors Group, a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting programs for artists.

Early's success has earned her recognition in more than 15 publications. Her works have been cited in The Washington Post, The Washington City Paper, The Examiner, Sculpture Magazine, and ArtPapers, as well as WETA's Around Town. She has participated in over 25 exhibitions, from Vermont to the Washington area, including the Carroll Square Gallery, Warehouse Gallery, Ann Loeb Bronfman Gallery, ArtDC, and in art galleries at the University of Maryland and Georgetown University. Today, Early's sculptures can be seen in the art collections of the US Department of State (Embassy of Panama), Dickstein, Shapiro LLP (Washington, DC), and Hotel Palomar (Arlington, VA).

Early is represented by Hemphill Fine Arts and works out of a studio located in a turn-of-the-century carriage house on Capitol Hill. To learn more about her work, visit www.maryearly.com or www.hemphillfinearts.com. Being a Southwest best-kept secret is just one of Early's many distinctions — she is also the daughter of Jim and Carole Early, long-time Southwest residents (Carole is the co-editor of The Southwester).

and lunch, and the camp helps fill a critical void for many parents who don't have childcare during their children's week off.

This year the theme was "Festivals Around the World." Campers learned about a festival from a different country each day, including Hanami (Japan), Day of the Dead (Mexico), Incwala (Swaziland), Diwali (India), and Carnival (Brazil). These themes were explored through creative hands-on activities, education, arts and crafts, and recreation.

City Year at Amidon ES

By Carole Early

In March, 2008, City Year Washington, DC, held a spring vacation camp at Amidon and two other public schools, as it has for the past eight years to provide a fun, safe, and enriching environment for children to spend their spring vacation. Parents are only charged $20 for the entire week of camp, including breakfast

Universal Pictures Filming in Southwest

By Cary Kamarat

At the beginning of April, residents of Harbour Square and Tiber Island witnessed a two-day build-up of film crews along with a variety of rolling and towering equipment in their backyards. Filming for Universal Pictures, Working Title Films wound up four weeks of location shooting for State of Play, a political thriller starring Ben Affleck and Russell Crowe. The film is based on the original mini-series of the same title, aired on BBC One in 2003 and BBC America the following year.

Vans, food carts, and bustling crews centered around Harbour Square's 560 Building. The co-op complex doubles as the home of Congressman Stephen Collins, played by Ben Affleck, who has presidential ambitions and whose mistress is found (you guessed it) 'dead in suspicious circumstances'. Russell Crowe's character, Cal McCaffrey, is a street-wise reporter in search of the truth who lives in Mount Pleasant, one of several other local areas depicted.

A food cart at Harbour Square's 560 Building.

About a third of the movie was shot in the District, including the U Street Corridor and Ben's Chili Bowl (where restaurant workers were used as extras), several spots on Capitol Hill, and the Maine Avenue Fish Market. But the modified exterior of the Department of Housing and Urban Development has been used as a hospital entrance; and there are outdoor scenes set on Mount Pleasant Street that were filmed at a Los Angeles studio. Metro shots were actually done at the Rosslyn station, across the river in Virginia, for visual reasons. It was the only one in the system to have an escalator leading to trains passing on upper and lower levels at the same time.

State of Play is scheduled for release in April, 2009.

River Park Friends of SW Helps SW/SE

By Thelma Jones

At its recent annual meeting, River Park Friends of Southwest learned it has made grants totaling about $55,000 over the past nine years or an average of about $6000 annually since its inception and continues to grow. This reflects the organization's viability which has grown from 1999 when it awarded only about $2500 and in 2006, awarded over $8000. "We hope to increase the amount of awards each year that we can make; our applicants are coming in with larger requests, and we have new inquires for awards," said President Farlee. Spending 10% for administrative costs, RPF of Southwest is committed to keeping its cost at a minimum while focusing on funding programs. RPF of Southwest does not conduct programs but instead aims to enhance, support, and supplement efforts in its three core areas -- community development, education, and charitable. President Farlee noted that the largest percentage of the organization's funds has benefited educational grants (58%), followed by community development activities (26%) and charitable activities (16%).

Awards for 2007 included EmmaUS Learning Center ($500) to help support the annual summer enrichment program for SW students; Living Classrooms Foundation of the National Capital Region ($1000) to help support a project for SW elementary school students on educating them about watersheds and their effects on the environment; Children's Environmental Health Network ($1000) to help support efforts to reduce health disparities among pre-school children in the District; SWNA Scholarship Fund ($1200) to help provide scholarship assistance for a SW resident; OurPlace DC ($1000) to help support SW women and their families who have been incarcerated; South Washington West of the River Family Strengthening Collaborative ($1000) to help support their parenting program; and The Southwester ($620) to help support the voice of our community through advertising which solicits funds and grant applications.

For more information on RPF of Southwest, please visit www.swdc.org or call President Farlee at (202) 554-4407. Tax-deductible contributions can be sent to River Park Friends, c/o Coralie Farlee, President, 389 O Street, SW, Washington, DC 20024.

"We would appreciate contributions both small and large and we encourage contributions from Southwest and Near Southeast DC businesses to support our activities", said President Farlee.

Southwest Business, Execware, Inc., Has New Patents

(Excerpts from a release)

Execware, Inc., a small home business of Robert Listou of SW, has announced the online release of Reason, a new type of PC software "that supports human reasoning with innovative functionality based on exclusive use of the firm's several software patents."

The concept is that "only by examining every permutation of a data table can a person be sure of detecting all meaningful relationships, good or bad, between the table's data elements. Automated sorting makes that practical."

Reason is distributed at <http://www.execware.com>. Also available there is a slide presentation and free yet fully functional Reason, with sample data and a tutorial, but limited to handling a dataset of 25 items.

Execware was founded by Listou, a retired USAF pilot. He relates his concepts to "the dynamic interactive relationship between a pilot's mind, the aircraft controls, and the data on the instrument panel."

Coast Trail to Anacostia River-walk

Progress is being made to connect the 20 mile long Anacostia Riverwalk to the 3,000 mile "traffic-free path linking East Coast cities from Maine to Florida," known as the East Coast Greenway.

The Garfield Park - Canal Park Connector Project of the DC Dept. of Transportation in Near SE DC will receive public comments in March and April 2008. That project focuses on the streets and sidewalks leading from Garfield Park on under the SE/SW Freeway to the proposed Canal Park on Second St. SE. In the meantime the project advisory committee of more than a dozen organizations and agencies will meet to decide on plans for next steps.

Progress so far is detailed on a project website www.tooledesign.com - click on "Garfield Park Canal Park Connector Project." That website also includes the names of the members of the advisory committee to whom you can address comments..

A public meeting in October discussed ideas for the layout and activities under the freeway, ways to avoid conflict between bicyclists, hikers, recreational uses, and automobiles. Extensive reports are included on the website.

Layout of trails can be found on the DC Dept. of Transportation entry on the web by Google-ing Anacostia Riverwalk Trail and on www.greenway.org, the East Coast Greenway website.

Safeway Continues Charity Giving

Craig Muckle, public affairs manager for area Safeway stores, has reported the company continues to give generously to local, area and national causes. A few examples:

"Safeway continued its annual in-store fundraising campaigns to fight prostate and breast cancer with record-breaking results, raising more than $2.2 million (combined) through its 178 mid-Atlantic stores."

"Its Club Card for Education Program powered by eScrip provided more than $2.3 million to public and private schools and educational facilities through the mid-Atlantic region."

"In addition to the high-profile events, Safeway responds favorably to the hundreds of requests it receives from churches, PTAs and other community- and neighborhood-oriented groups."

"The success of our business is a result of the many customers who patronize our stores on a regular basis throughout the year," said Steve Neibergall, Safeway's Eastern Division President. "As a result, we wholeheartedly believe we can demonstrate our appreciation by being as generous as possible in our contributions to the wide assortment of community activities that are held in the neighborhoods we serve."

Opening Day Blues

Kudos to our men in Blue, the District of Columbia Metropolitan Police Department displayed their superior skills in crowd control on Saturday, for the opening game of the Nationals Baseball Park. The game patrons were season ticket holders and they arrived with exuberance indicative of baseball fans, dressed in bright game colors.

With a changing neighborhood such as ours, there was a mixture of people in the surrounding area. The men in blue were at their best insuring the safety of everyone, fans and residents alike. The patrons were eagerly approaching the stadium as residential on-lookers stood by to observe the new energy that the stadium brings to this area. There were check points strategically placed on every corner and the patrons moved swiftly to their destination.

entrances, while helicopters hovered above the M Street Corridor amplifying the superior crowd control tactics of our Police Department. The officers politely approached anyone who looked vagrant to move on to their destination while directing the increased number of approaching Nationals patrons.

The entire area was patrolled; every corner had police check points, including the 7-11. The check points were the waterfront area in Southwest to the bridges of Eleventh Street, S.E. from the Comfort Inn to the Navy Yard, along 4th Street, S.W. (the Fort McNair area) to HUD (7th Street, S.W.) and connecting to Main Street all the way to the Smithsonian.

The neighborhood has been in anticipation of the opening of the stadium for the past year; it has changed from a total residential environment to a semi commercial one. The SWNA has had many concerns regarding the building of the National Stadium and the new energy that it brings to us. The opening day is just a sample of what's in store.

Nationals Stadium 2008 Visitor Parking Permits – DDOT, MPD, DMV

Besides the DC Dept. of Transportation (DDOT) mailing to Near SE & Near SW residences of one-per-household Nationals Stadium 2008 visitor parking permits, Metropolitan Police (MPD) through their police stations can give out one or more "special occasion" visitor permits for up to 15 days. Required is a personal visit by the resident to one of two police stations in Ward 6 to fill in an application listing the license plate of the visitors' vehicles. Another visit is required to renew the permit. The two stations for residential parking streets marked "District 6" are at 415 – 4th St. SW and 500 E St. SE.

Information on the web is at mpdc.dc.gov, click on Traffic Safety and click on Parking Permits- Visitors.

Meanwhile the DC Dept. of Motor Vehicles (DMV) at its service centers issues special 60 day visitor parking permits for "health care providers" and 15 day permits for commercial vehicles doing

"home renovations or repairs." Original documents required from the visiting vehicle and the resident are listed on the DMV website dmv.dc.gov. Under Online Services, click Parking Permits/ Reciprocity, then click Health Care Permits or Contractual Employee Temporary Parking Permit.

Nationals Charity Grants

Donations will be accepted by the public (as well as being made by the team) to the Nationals Dream Foundation. Donate $250 or more and get your name on one of dozens of baseballs on three large walls at Nationals Park.

Residents Only on One Side; Visitors 2 Hr. On the Other

All residential streets in Near SW & SE in Ward 6 are now being marked with red signs on one side of the street for parking ONLY by Ward 6 residents with Zone 6 stickers in their windshields and the other side with green signs permitting 2 hour free parking by anyone. With the big 6 sticker in your window you can park on either side as long as you like.

Green sign – 2 hour parking

A standing room only crowd at the Syphax Community Center witnessed the recent graduation ceremony of 12 proud students, ages 5-11, from the Computer-for-Kids Training Program. Hosted by the SWNA Youth Activities Task Force (YATF) in partnership with the King-Greenleaf Recreation Center and First Time Computers, the ceremony culminated the eight-week computer program at King-Greenleaf Recreation Center, the goal of which was to help reduce the digital divide in Southwest (zip code 20024) and Near Southeast (zip 20003). Each graduating student has been awarded a refurbished computer with the understanding the student will commit to sharing the knowledge with other household members.

Jones, served as the master of ceremonies. Dr. Beryl C. Rice, Co-Chair of YATF, welcomed the audience and highlighted some of YATF's accomplishments since its inception in 1982. Guest Speaker Retired Col. Will A. Gunn, United States Air Force, and former President & CEO, Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Washington, delivered an inspiring speech using the word DRIVE — Determined, Ready, Individual, Virtue, and Excel — and skillfully engaged the graduates and the other kids in the audience.

Future Police Move To Bowen

By Carole Early

I asked Commander David Kamperin of the 1st District.MPD about the police move to Bowen School and here are his answers:

Q. 1) Will the Police Boy's & Girl's Club No. 4 remain on the premises? If not, why not?

A. by CDR Kamperin: "This is a decision that is still being discussed. Although we assist the Boy's and Girl's Club, the clubs are an independent entity (the Boy's and Girl's Clubs of Greater Washington). There are advantages and disadvantages to the club remaining on the premises. Considering the school is scheduled to house not only a 24hr / 7 day police patrol facility but our Violent Crime Branch and Patrol Support Division, there are security, access, parking and other issues that must be considered. We are looking at several options at this time".

Q. 2) What kind of time schedule is expected before MPD moves in? Will renovations be extensive? What state of the art technologies will be implemented at the new location?

A. by Cdr Kamperin. "According to a recent meeting I had with personnel from our facilities, property management and the architect, the move-in-time is anticipated to be between November 2008 – Spring 2009. The renovations are extensive as the site must be suitable for a major patrol district and its functions (to include station area, cell block holding facility, locker rooms, squad / roll call room, etc). Regarding technologies, there are discussions with our IT department to enhance the interview and processing rooms, install "temperature boards" that would broadcast international, national and local information on a continuous basis to secure locations in the facility, and other upgrades that are being proposed"

Q. 3) Who first proposed the idea of MPD moving into Bowen?

A. by Cdr Kamperin "I don't know when the discussion to move 1D to Bowen began. When the decision was made to construct the new crime lab at the 1D location it is likely that the search for a new location began".

Cherry Trees Planted at Amidon Elementary School

Above, Kindergarten students display artwork they had prepared for the cherry tree celebration. Below, visiting Japanese high school students helped with the planting.

As shown in these photos, three cherry trees were planted by celebrities, high school students visiting from Japan and students at Amidon Elementary School at 4th and I (Eye) St. SW during the National Cherry Blossom Festival.

Trees were 7-10 feet tall when planted, and their maximum potential will be 25-30 feet tall, with a maximum branch spread of 25 feet.

Care of the trees, which SW neighbors and staff members at Amidon have agreed to, include watering each with 20 gallons of water each week from mid-April to early Oct. (Outside water taps at the school are within 100 feet). In addition new layers of mulch must be placed around each tree each spring and fall. Neighbors agreeing to assist the students and teachers in caring for the trees for years to come include Perry Klein, Board Member of the Southwest Neighborhood Assembly, Dr. Clarence Brown, nearby resident who is also president of the Amidon PTA, and Gloria Pate, Amidon parent.

Under the Neighborhood Tree Planting Program, presented by The Home Depot, cherry blossom trees are planted in all eight wards of the city. This program gives neighbors the resources, training, and counsel they need for successful tree adoption.

At last year's festival, Perry Klein helped arrange a similar planting of cherry trees at Jefferson Middle School on 7th and H St. SW Naomi Mitchell of Council Member Tommy Wells office helped with the digging ceremony.

After the tree planting children enjoyed a spread of Sushi contributed by Philips Flagship Restaurant and chopsticks, fortune cookies and green tea from Jenny's Asian Fusion.

D.C. Tells SWNA Of Lansburg Park Needs

(from notes by Meg Brinckman, SWNA Secretary)

Amy Tarce, National Capital Planning Commission, and Jesse Rounds, D.C. Department of Parks and Recreation, CapitalSpace Partners presented the DRAFT plan for Lansburg Park Model Project. Lansburg Park has been under Federal jurisdiction, but has now been transferred to the D.C. Department of Parks and Recreation. The CapitalSpace Partners include the National Park Service, Department of Energy, The D.C. Office of Planning, National Capital Planning Commission and DC Department of Parks and Recreation. The rapid growth in all areas of the city points up the need to preserve and improve parks in DC.

A meeting with SW community leaders on January 29, 2008, gave input to the uses that could be made of the Lansburg space. The planners are open to ideas from the community. Reference was made to an older plan to utilize Bowen School as a Community Center and the pledge by the Department of Motor Vehicles when they located adjacent to the park. There was also a promise made by the Corcoran during their negotiation with the ANC for involvement in the upgrading of Lansburg Park. It was pointed out that the Bowen property would be used for the First District Police Headquarters.

Several members of the audience remarked on the need for water and electricity to be restored to the park. Uses in the interim, while a full renovation is being planned, are stymied by the lack of both water and power. Use of the area for a Community Garden as well for summer arts festivals by community groups were mentioned.

Jesse Rounds replied that there are problems with locating records of the water and electrical installations that were done when the National Park Service owned the park. In reference to the establishment of a "Dog Park," Rounds said that Parks and Recreation does not initiate plans for "Dog Parks," but that sufficient community interest can result in the inclusion of one.

The community can make input to the process by contacting Melissa McKnight, Head of the CapitalSpace Partners at D.C. Parks and Recreation.

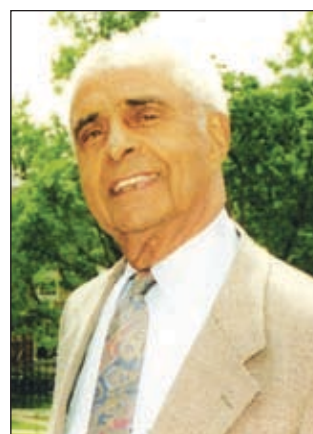

CapitalSpace will hold a public meeting at Martin Luther King Library, 901 G Street, NW, May 20, 2008, 5:30 PM. All are encouraged to attend.

Walter Brooks Honored

By Thelma A. Jones

Walter Brooks may hold the distinction of being the first Honorary Vestry Member at St. Augustine's Episcopal Church. During St. A's recent annual meeting, Brooks was recognized with a lovely plaque and a letter of gratitude. Rev. Martha Clark, Priest-in-Charge said: "It is a privilege to inform you that the Vestry of St. Augustine's has voted, unanimously, to confer upon you the title of Honorary Vestry Member. To our knowledge, you are the first recipient of this title in the 42-year history of St. A's." Surprised by the recognition, Brooks thanked the church and flashed his classic, yet composed smile.

Brooks was recognized for his nearly 40 years of faithful commitment and dedicated service to St. A's and the Southwest community, where he skillfully combines his passion, spirit of volunteerism, and professional and personal life to make a remarkable difference. At St. A's, Brooks has served on the vestry, performed overall maintenance service, provided transportation and assembling of food for the homeless feeding program, helped to prepare breakfast for the Sunday feeding ministry, and served as a photographer. In addition, Brooks was delegate to both the Diocese Convention and the Regional Committee and is currently serving on the Altar Guild.

In the community, he served as chairperson of the Southwest Neighborhood Assembly's Youth Activities Task Force (SWNA-YATF), which began at St. A's in 1982, served on the community's Recreation Committee and volunteered at Randall Recreation Center where he eventually worked for a number of years. Brooks is a Howard University graduate with a BA in Health and Physical Education and a Masters from New York University in Human Relations Education. His passion for youth is reflected in both his civic involvement as well as his professional life where he worked with the DC Recreation Department and taught physical education in DCPS before becoming a school administrator.

Brooks was married to the late Charlotte K. Brooks, former YATF Chairperson and SWNA Board Member for more than 55 years. Together, they shared a passion for the community and youth and lived in Southwest's Tiber Island for more than 50 years. Brooks now lives in Silver Spring, MD with spouse Dr. Verna Cook, President, Black Women in Sisterhood (BISA), an educational and charitable organization. Both can still be seen regularly at St. A's, especially on many Saturdays when Brooks comes down to prepare the altar for Sunday's service.

Congressional Hearing on Flood Maps

Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton, as chair of a House subcommittee, recently held a hearing on the practical impact of FEMA changing the flood maps that require flood insurance to be bought and local levees to be built three feet above the flood level.

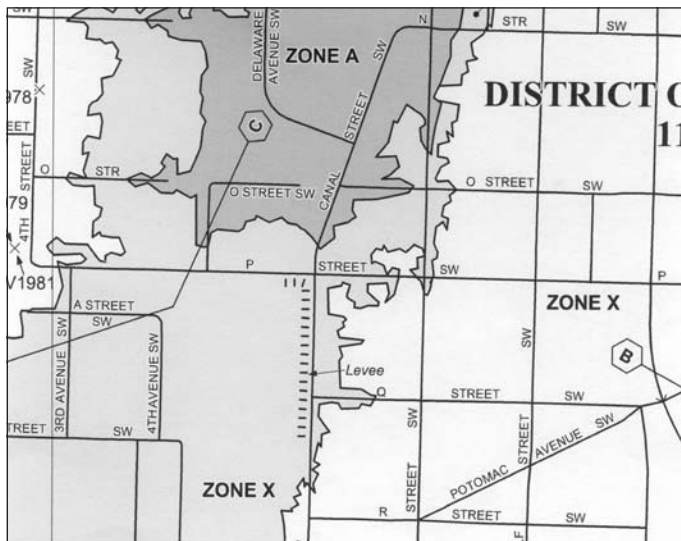

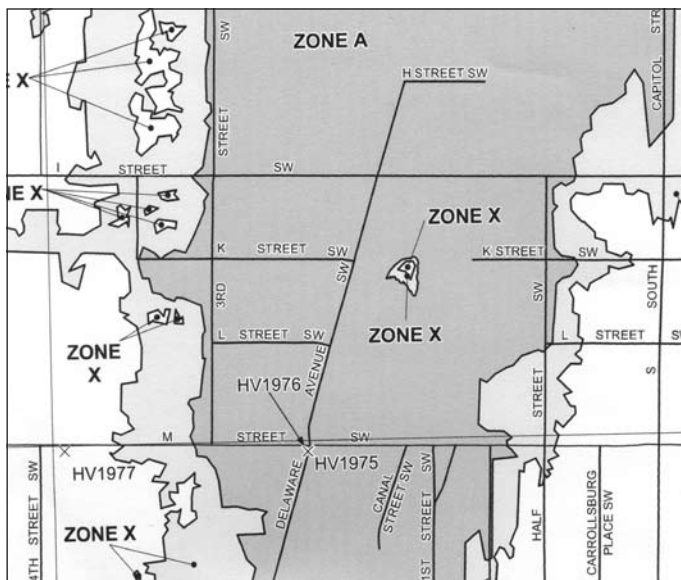

In announcing the hearings, Congresswoman Norton stated that questions have arisen "from whether new requirements to mitigate against floods that have only a one-percent chance of occurring are overkill, to who will bear the costs... and how to alleviate these hazards in the future". "Speculation about home insurance increases is widespread," she stated. "Some homeowners and businesses in Southwest Washington are in the new flood plain, but the chief insurance impact likely will be on new construction..."

FEMA's Flood Maps for SW

The new flood maps proposed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency for DC show potential flooding reaching from P St. SW up to G St. SW and on up to the Mall. The darker grey areas are Zone A, described by FEMA as "High Risk Areas" where "mandatory flood insurance purchase requirements apply." They are "areas with a one percent annual chance of flooding and a 26 percent chance of flooding over the life of a 30-year mortgage." In Zones B and X FEMA says "Flood insurance is available to all property owners and renters in these zones."

Printed here are enlarged portions of the flood maps from the DC Dept. of Environment website ddoe.dc.gov. Under Information click on the pink Public Notices. Then click on the pink FEMA's Proposed Flood Maps For DC. To bring up the two sections of maps affecting SW, on the left hand list click on 19C to see the part that goes up to G St. SW (and beyond to the Mall (not

The levees that are considered insufficient are shown as hatched lines at the corner of P St. & 2nd St. SW.

Arena Stage – 4 plays at Lincoln Theatre

Arena Stage has announced its 2008-09 season of 10 plays or musicals, including four to be staged at historic Lincoln Theatre on U St. NW. Here is the description of Lincoln Theatre on Arena Stage's website www.arenastage.org: Located in the heart of the recently revitalized U Street Corridor, The Lincoln Theatre is arguably the most beautiful historic theater in the metropolitan area. Opened in 1922 as a first-run movie and vaudeville house, the Lincoln was the anchor of Washington's historic Black Broadway, featuring artists such as Duke Ellington, Louis Armstrong, Ella Fitzgerald, and Billie Holiday. Elegantly restored to its original grandeur, the historic landmark echoes the spirit and life that pervaded the U Street Corridor in the first half of the 20th century. The 1920's jewel is the perfect marriage of old-world elegance and current-day comforts. With a metro station right across U Street, street and valet parking available for purchase, and some of the District's best eateries just steps away, Arena Stage at The Lincoln Theatre is the perfect complement to our intimate performance space in Crystal City.

$2.5 Million for DC Flood Protection

(Release by DC)

Mayor Adrian Fenty has pledged $2.5 million to reconstruct flood levees at 17th St. NW and elsewhere in the district. "In the next 30 days, District and federal agencies including the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the National Capital Planning Commission, the Army Corps of Engineers and the National Park Service will have in place a strategy to complete needed improvements of the 17th Street levee," Fenty announced.

The District will allocate $2.5 million in funds for the required design and construction of improvements to the levee system, in a process expected to last 15 months.

In a recent letter to the District, FEMA said it would delay implementation of a Flood Insurance Rate Map, which would have required many private property owners to purchase mandatory flood insurance. FEMA also suspended the requirement that the District implement interim building codes of the National Flood Insurance Program.

"This is very good news," said Harriet Tregoning, Director of the Office of Planning. "We were very concerned that new floodplain boundaries in the District of Columbia — which would only be temporary while levee upgrades are being made — would have resulted in permanent and unrecoverable costs to federal agencies and private property owners and caused a loss of the type of street-level development that is part of the unique urban character of Central Washington."

The levee system consists of temporary and permanent barriers at four locations — three on or near the Mall, and one near Fort McNair, according to the Washington Post. [The Ft. McNair levee is at P St. S.W. and Second St. SW. DC Dept. of Environment states that the Ft. McNair levee is not adequate because sandbag closures would have to be constructed in the opening at 2nd & P which would take 24 hours].

The Post story on Jan. 24, 2008 stated, "If the maps become official, residences in the zone with federally backed mortgages or with mortgages from federally backed banks would be required to have federal flood insurance, said Butch Kinerney, a spokesman for the FEMA directorate that administers the National Flood Insurance Program."

"The annual cost of such insurance is about $600, he said.

"Residences that are owned outright would not be required to have the insurance, he said, nor would commercial or government properties.

"New buildings in the zone, however, would be required to be constructed above certain base flood levels, which vary throughout the area".

For a building being constructed in the flood zone at 401 M St. SE in the Yards, ANC6D was told that seven feet of fill was added to the site and DC approved the plan.

Community Not Stiffed: DDOT

Witnesses for the D.C. Dept. of Transportation denied ANC6D claims that D.C. had not consulted the SW community in preparing the Ballpark Parking Plan.

After ANC 6D Chairman Roger Moffatt had testified before the D.C. Zoning Commission that the community had been given little chance for input into the new parking and traffic rules, the commission called DDOT and the Sport Commission in to a special hearing to reply.

Instructions for Multi-Space Meters

A two-sided flier explaining the new tall parking meters (like shown here) can be downloaded from the DC Dept. of Transportation website www.ddot.dc.gov.

Under "Information" click red letters saying "Parking". That opens you to red letter "Ballpark & Columbia Heights Get New rules." Click on that and get (in red) "Ballpark Pilot." Clicking on that gets you (in red) "Brochure about using multi-space meters." Click on that that for the brochure.

In the brochure look for the center column saying "Ballpark Parking Regulations."
